BARRETT-TODD WIN CHARITY PAIRS

Robert Todd, left, of Tallahassee, and Jade Barrett, of South Dakota, right, won the kickoff Charity Pairs last night, nipping Tony Saunders of Bermuda and McKenzie Myers of Virginia by the narrowest of margins, one match point. In third place were Elizabeth McKee and Charles Hall of Bermuda. Far right: Linda Pollett and William Pollett, champions of the B and C flights of the Charity Pairs. Tied for second place in Flight B were Nancy Brown and Candace Matthew of Massachusetts and Elizabeth and Merrill Burton of Toronto. Brown and Matthew were also second in Flight C, followed by Mary Akin and Mary Daniher of Toronto. Congratulations!

Correction!

The Newport Room is open from 5:30 pm daily, not 6:30, as stated in yesterday's Bulletin.

The Daily Bulletins are made available through the sponsorship and support of the Bermuda Department of Tourism.

Intermediate Corner

Each day we'll present an article from one of the top teachers in North America: Barbara Seagram, Eddie Kantar and Audrey Grant

50 % - Is That Good Enough?

Barbara Seagram

Would you buy a used car from a salesman who told you that your brakes would only work 50% of the time? Wouldn't you rather walk? Or at least find some other way to get there?

As all of know, finesses only work 50% of the time, but we tend to be finesse-aholics. Let's try an alternative. If you should find yourself in a contract that depends on a finesse, think of the strip and throw-in (otherwise known as an end-play, because it tends to happen near the end of the hand).

♠ 10 9 ♥ K 8 6 4 2 ♦ K 8 3 ♣ K 10 7 ♠ K J 7 3 ♥ 10 ♦ J 10 9 2 ♣ Q 4 3 2 ♠ A 4 ♥ A Q J 7 5 ♦ A Q 7 ♣ A J 5	♠ Q 8 6 5 2 ♥ 9 3 ♦ 6 5 4 ♣ 9 8 6

Opening lead: ♦J

You are South and you arrive in the contract of six hearts. Counting your losers, you find one spade loser, no heart losers, no diamond losers and one potential loser in clubs. West has led the jack of diamonds. At times like this, you now need to do your stretching exercises, lean to the left, lean to the right, to see which of your opponents has the queen of clubs. (Just kidding! :&) If they are holding their cards close to their chests, do you now fall back on guessing which way to take the club finesse?

In clubs, you have a "two-way finesse" i.e., a choice of how to finesse. This is in contrast to a situation where you may have the club K32 opposite the AJ4; now you have no choice as to how to finesse. Since your finesse will only work 50% of the time, let's see if we can increase your chances of making this hand to 100%.

You win the diamond jack with let's say the ace and now you draw trump (only as many as necessary, in this case two rounds). You now strip the diamond suit (play it in its entirety). Resolve to NOT lead the club suit yourself. Now play the spade ace and give away a spade to charity. West wins the spade trick. What would you like him to lead now? For that matter, if East wins the spade trick, he has the same problem. If either opponent leads a spade or a diamond, you sluff a club from your hand and ruff in dummy. If they lead a club, you play low from the next hand and you will automatically win three club tricks.

This is the "end" position:

♠ — ♥ K 8 6 ♦ — ♣ K 10 7 ♠ K ♥ — ♦ 10 ♣ Q 4 3 2 ♠ — ♥ J 7 5 ♦ — ♣ A J 5	♠ Q 8 6 ♥ — ♦ — ♣ 9 8 6

What you have done here is to put your opponents into an impossible situation. Whatever they do now will be wrong.

The principle of throwing your opponents in (putting them on lead to do your dirty work) occurs in other situations. Here is a cute example:

♠ 10 9 7 6 ♥ Q 8 7 ♦ K 8 7 ♣ A 6 4  ♠ Q J 8 2 ♥ J 10 9 ♦ 6 4 3 ♣ 10 9 8  ♠ A K 5 4 3 ♥ A K 6 ♦ A Q 5 ♣ K 3	♠ — ♥ 5 4 3 2 ♦ J 10 9 2 ♣ Q J 7 5 2

You are South in six spades. West has led the heart jack. You win the heart lead in your hand and start drawing trump with the spade ace. Suddenly everything comes to a screeching halt! RHO fails to follow suit and your six-spade contract at first glance seems doomed to failure.

Now hang on. Logic must prevail. If you cash your spade king, you are now giving up completely. You cannot make it after that. So, stop pulling trump immediately. Play all the other suits (stripping) and pray that West has to follow all the way. Don't forget to play the third club from dummy and trump it in your hand; when you are stripping, strip completely!

Now play either the spade ten from dummy or a small spade from your hand toward the ten in dummy. West will win with the jack and here is the end position:

♠ 10 9 ♥ — ♦ — ♣ —  ♠ Q 8 ♥ — ♦ — ♣ —  ♠ K 5 ♥ — ♦ — ♣ —	♠ — ♥ — ♦ J ♣ Q
---	--------------------------

West, having won the lead with jack of spades, now finds himself in a dreadful predicament. Whatever spade he now leads gives you the contract.

When you play like this, they'll be lining up to play with you. Any day now, you'll be ready to represent your country!

“Quo Fata Ferunt” Bermuda’s 400th Anniversary by Dr. George Cook

The wreck of Sea Venture and the subsequent rescue of the Jamestown colony in Virginia is one of the great maritime epics of the western world. What early seventeenth century writers might see as the hand of God, our more skeptical age might attribute to good leadership and good luck: something that is so often neglected in history. Those events began 400 years of continuous habitation of these small isolated Atlantic islands. They also resulted in Bermuda’s playing a crucial role in maintaining 400 years of continuous English settlement in North America and, therefore, the beginning of what became her great neighbour, the United States of America.

When the Virginia Company’s third “supply” to their nascent Jamestown colony (established in May, 1607) set sail from Plymouth on 2 June, 1609, the “adventurers” hoped to keep alive their investment and, perhaps, even to turn a profit. Although it had been an intrusion into a Spanish domain, the colony had had a near disastrous beginning, and that without any Spanish intervention. The excessive death rate, even by early seventeenth-century standards (of the original 104 men and boys, only 38 survived to greet the first supply ships in January, 1608), had resulted from disease, bad water, inadequate and insecure food sources, conflict with the native people, internal dissensions and chaotic leadership. The Company determined in 1608 on a decisive injection of people and effort by sending out a supply of some 600 colonists, plenty of food and a new leadership with new instructions.

Sea Venture, an armed merchantman of 300 tons and 16 guns, was secured as the fleet's "Admiral", or flagship. An experienced mariner (and an original Virginia Company "adventurer"), Sir George Somers of Lyme Regis, was put in command. A self-made man of humble origins, Sir George proved to be the right choice: although a "lamb" on land, he was also a "lion" at sea; and, like many heroic figures, he was also lucky. His fleet was composed of 6 other ships - Falcon, Blessing, Unitie, Lion, Swallow and Diamond - and 2 pinnaces, Catch and Virginia. The latter had been built in America by another group of colonists who had abandoned the Sagadahoc, Maine, site in 1608. So, Jamestown was the sole English interest in North America, and that was in a precarious state.

Sea Venture's skipper (and Vice-Admiral) was another highly experienced mariner, the one-armed Captain Christopher Newport. Leader of the original 1607 voyage and of the two earlier supplies, he knew Chesapeake waters well. On board was the entire "high command", a matter of the most serious consequences. In addition to Admiral Somers, there was also the colony's new Lieutenant-Governor designate, Sir Thomas Gates, an experienced soldier on leave from the Dutch service, bearing his sealed instructions, and Sir George Yeardley who would command the colony's land forces. The crew and passengers (140 men, 10 women, some children - and a dog) were a motley lot of better and common sorts. Two native Powhatan people, Machumps and Namontack, were returning to Virginia. Rev. Mr. Richard Bucke was the colony's new clergyman. His assistant, Stephen Hopkins, was a religious zealot and troublemaker, who would later sail on the Mayflower to New England in 1620. William Strachey, a down-on-his-luck but aspiring writer, hoped to make a name for himself as Virginia's chronicler. John Rolfe, who would later marry the legendary Pocahontas, was transporting seeds of the sweeter Spanish tobacco (Nicotiana tobacum) that would replace the harsh native variety (Nicotiana rustica) and would stabilize the colony's economic base. (In turn, that would create the need for plenty of cheap labour - slaves.) While some of those sailing on Sea Venture were "vagabonds", jailbirds and "unruly youths", others were skilled artisans with practical experience to bring to the taming of a wilderness. Beyond the eclectic passenger list, she, as the largest ship, also carried the major portion of the food supply. That had disastrous consequences.

The story of the voyage was graphically recorded by William Strachey. To avoid potential conflict with the Spanish, while shortening sailing time, the fleet took a new, more direct, "northerly" route, the first supply to do so. With no stopping points en route, it was a bold action. The vessels sailed in "friendly consort" until 24 July. The Atlantic was, and is, notoriously unpredictable. At latitude 27 North and some 1000 leagues west of the Azores, a storm "dreadful and hideous" dispersed them (Catch had already returned to England). Sea Venture proved a highly vulnerable ship. Whether she was specially built or leased for the voyage, this was her maiden transatlantic crossing. The fact that she alone in the fleet leaked so badly, at "every joint almost having spewed out her oakum", suggests that the wood was still green. Further, in order to make room for the food and passengers, her ordnance had been placed on the top deck, thus adversely affecting her stability in a rough sea. Passengers and crew battled the storm for four days. On 28 July, when all seemed lost - and when the liquor had been broken out before commending their souls to God and the deep - the severely leaking Sea Venture, by the "work of a merciful God", was run aground on Bermuda's eastern reefs. Perhaps it was Somers' skill at conning the ship and a lot of good luck; she could easily have been smashed to bits like other ships before her. Meanwhile, the other storm-battered ships (two of them dismasted) with their sick and exhausted passengers straggled into Jamestown during August. They brought some provisions, but also the monumental challenge of feeding over 300 more mouths.

THE CHARITY PAIRS

Your intrepid reporters (okay, it was just us, the editors) sat down to watch the first round of the Charity Pairs last night. Katie sat at the table where Bermudians Vera Petty-Roman Smolski faced Tony Saunders (also Bermuda) and McKenzie Myers (Virginia), while JC kibitzed locals Alan Douglas and Jane Smith do battle with Ed White and Bert Newman of Michigan.

Whereas Smith decided to show the balanced nature of her hand with her bid of one no trump, Petty preferred to raise clubs with her five-card support and aces. Both responses led to the same three no trump contract, albeit from different sides of the table.

Newman (West) led a spade and Saunders (East) a heart, but with the clubs favourably splitting, the result was the same, plus 660 to North-South. It is possible this was the flattest board in the event.

At his table, Alan Douglas considered coming in with four no trump over four spades, but his suit texture was too poor he felt. Ed White lost a heart, a spade and a diamond for plus 420 when the opponents had a viable save.

The action at the other table was fast and furious. Petty led the heart king against five spades doubled and Smolski overtook this with the ace to shift to his singleton club. Saunders won the queen to lead a trump from dummy – Smolski hopped up with the ace and the moment of truth had arrived. If Petty had the diamond ace, Smolski could reach her hand for a club ruff for two off. As you can see, that was not the case, and when Smolski shifted to the diamond two, Saunders gave it a long look before playing low. Plus 650 was his reward.

Smolski was misled by the two of clubs Petty played under his nine, indicating, he thought, suit preference. Had Petty played a higher club, Smolski could have left Saunders to his own devices. Saunders would have had to play Smolski for both the ten and king of diamonds to make his contract, not an impossible feat.

Newman led the heart five and Smith made a good shot by putting in the nine, which held the trick..With the diamonds 3-3, nine tricks were now assured, and that's how many Smith took, plus 400.

Again, things were rather different at the other table. McKenzie Myers also led the heart five, but here Petty ducked in dummy and won the king over Tony Saunders' eight. She tried the diamond ace and another to the jack, losing to the queen. Saunders shifted to the spade jack, king, ace, three. Another spade went to the eight and queen. When Petty now played a heart to the queen, her fate was sealed – she had only eight tricks, minus 50.
